Lucky driver

Robert Martin, 21, of Ulysses, Kan., suffered only minor injuries Friday after he collided with a truck stopped at the Spur 48 light. After hitting the truck, Martin lost control of his car, plowing under the big rig.

Strain wants to sue

A fed-up Marguerite Strain mailed a request Friday to the Justice Department for a go-ahead to sue the city and the Texas municipal retirement system herself.

Mrs. Strain, 67, has been waiting for her claim to be settled before she retires. She has worked more than 30 years for the city.

She has been waiting for several years for her complaint to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to be acted upon.

Mrs. Strain originally complained that she was being discriminated against by the city and the retirement system because she must work three years longer than a man must to get the same benefits.

She filed her claim with the EEOC seeking a federal ruling. Justice Department attorney Squire Padgett came to Canyon from Washington to investigate.

That was well over a year ago and Mrs. Strain has been waiting for a decision ever since.

Friday Padgett said he had no idea if or when a decision will be reached. Her case must filter through seven federal agencies, he said.

"This case is a lot bigger than Mrs. Strain," he said. "It attacks the very structure of the insurance industry."

He advised her to ask for a clearance from the Justice Department to pursue her claim privately in court.

A Supreme Court decision in June that seemed to settle her gripe with the city doesn't apply to her case, Padgett said.

"There is a difference in the statutes that were involved," Padgett said, in the case heard before the Supreme Court.

"The issue that got to the Supreme Court is not the issue we're interested in," he said.

In Fitzpatrick v. Bitzer, the Court ruled that under the amended Civil Rights Act of 1964, the federal courts had the right to protect state employees from discrimination. Amendments enacted in 1972 specifically authorize federal courts to order state governments to pay damages to individuals who have been discriminated against by the state.

In one case, the state of Connecticut was ordered to pay retroactive retirement benefits and attorneys' fees to men who had been required to work longer than women to qualify for retirement.

This is a reverse of Mrs. Strain's case.

Connecticut argued that state sovereignty precluded Congress from passing any laws that required expenditure of state funds. Congress passed the Civil Rights Act and subsequent amendments under the authority granted by the Fourteenth Amendment, which prohibits states from denying any person equal protection of the law.

The Court ruled against Connecticut on the grounds that states had voluntarily forfeited some of their sovereign immunity by ratifying the Fourteenth Amendment.

Padgett said the issue ruled on involved state sovereignty more than it did discrimination.

He said he would quickly approve her request to sue privately.

"It would be a tough lawsuit," he said. "It will have a dramatic effect on the entire insurance industry and they're going to attack her hammer and tongs. It will take a lot of resources to pursue the issue."

The requirement for women to work longer than men for the same benefits is based on actuarial tables that show that the expected life span of a woman is longer than that of a man.

The practice of making women work longer is common with retirement systems, including the civil service, Padgett said.

There is a suit similar to hers in New York that has been kicked around the court structure for more than a year, he said.

Padgett said he was not optimistic about a federal ruling for her.

Randall County surplus sighted

Yes, Virginia, there really is a windfall waiting for the county at the end of this fiscal year.

The county will end the present fiscal year Sept. 30 with a surplus of $131,700, administrative assistant Carroll Wilson said Friday.

The unexpected riches were first uncovered by Wilson while he was still editor of The Canyon News. Thursday he and county auditor, Bill Tirey, confirmed the surplus, going over the present budget, checking the actual expenditures since Jan. 1.

The surplus is a result of a shift in the county's fiscal year. The budget was prepared for a fiscal year of Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, but the county adopted a new year to begin on Oct. 1.

So, this year the county has 12 months of money allocated to a nine-month year.

Basing income and expenditures through September on the actual income and expenditures through July, Tirey and Wilson estimate the county will take in $1,586,300 in revenue and will spend $1,454,600. This leaves a $131,700 surplus, they figure. In addition to that, the county began this fiscal year with a $46,000 surplus that will raise the estimated year end balance to about $177,000, Wilson said.

The budget the county is working with now did not reflect accurately the income and expenditures, Wilson said.

A number of expenses were not included, he said. For example, there were no budget allocations

Jacobs feted

The Canyon Classroom Teachers' Association Wednesday presented a silver tray to ex-superintendent of Canyon schools Jerry Jacobs.

The tray was given as a token of appreciation for Jacobs' years of service to Canyon schools.

Engraving on the back of the tray reads: "To Jerry Jacobs, 8-15-67 to 8-31-76, Canyon Classroom Teachers' Association."

The gift was made by Guyda Webb, association president; Penny Allen, secretary; and Vera Brown, treasurer, in behalf of the organization.

LaGrone loses job

Permit Revoked

Three days after he was hired, Jerry LaGrone lost his alcohol-drug abuse post as an outgrowth of the alleged theft of a 15-cent newspaper.

LaGrone lost his $899 a month job and his work release from Randall County jail was revoked after he was arrested Thursday morning for taking an Amarillo paper from in front of The Canyon News.

Members of The Canyon News staff had complained that the paper had been missing each morning for about two weeks. An officer observed LaGrone taking the paper and placed him under arrest on a charge of theft under $5.

Canyon News publisher Troy Martin declined to press charges so they were dropped.

Sheriff Cliff Longest said LaGrone, who is under a two-year jail sentence for driving while intoxicated, had broken the terms of his work release agreement.

"Rules are made to be followed and Jerry knew the rules," declared the sheriff. "One of them was that he not break any laws."

LaGrone only Monday was named alcoholism-drug abuse service coordinator for Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

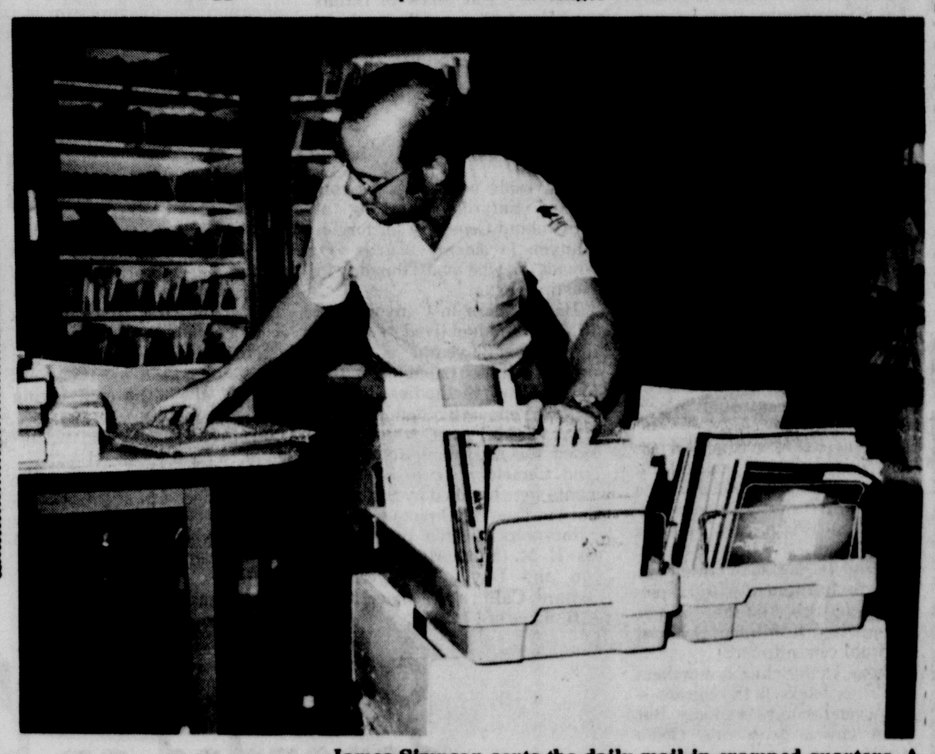
George Loudder, executive director of PRPC, said LaGrone's job was conditional upon his work release permit under which he could be on duty 8 hours a day.

Loudder said he expects to move quickly to fill the vacancy left by LaGrone's full-time incarceration.

"We've got some real critical situations that need immediate attention," he declared. "I thought and still think Jerry has a lot to contribute and I hate to lose his kind of talent which is so badly needed."

LaGrone had been on a work release permit for 8 hours a day spending his nights in Randall County jail.

A panel of eight Panhandle judges recently was appointed by PRPC to establish an alcoholism treatment center to coordinate treatment agencies in the region.



Mail call

James Simpson sorts the daily mail in cramped quarters. A hearing Wednesday night will be held to present Postal Service plans for a new post office here. The meeting is set for 7:30 at the community center.

Post Office meeting set Wednesday night

Postal officials Wednesday will present their side of the controversial proposal to build a new post office here.

The public hearing is set at 7:30 p.m. in the community center.

Critics have protested the proposed site, the need for new facilities and the cost of construction and operation.

A group of Fifth Avenue residents circulated a petition and talked with postal officials from here to Oklahoma City protesting one of the building sites.

Proponents of the plan include the Canyon Chamber of Commerce. C of C officials are expected to present a prepared statement at the hearing.

U.S. Postal Service personnel expected at the hearing include Canyon Postmaster Lee Roy Moreland, Amarillo Postmaster C.T. Davis, district officer Dale Fowlkes from Oklahoma City and Roland Cook of the real estate division in Dallas.

Two sites are under consideration, according to Davis.

One, which has received the most criticism, is located west of the Square between Fourth and Fifth Avenues. Building on this site would lead to widening of Fifth Avenue and destruction of the character of the tree-rich neighborhood, critics say.

The other site, which was disclosed only last week, is thought

Plans in making

Flu shots soon

"All facilities are go," for swine flu innoculations to begin soon, and area agencies are making plans for the local campaign, according to Dr. Henry C. Moritz.

Moritz is director for the Texas Department of Public Health Resources, Region I, the organization responsible for distribution of the vaccine in this area.

He said he expects to receive the vaccine sometime early in September and that the overall program for the region should last most of that month and lap over into October.

Moritz has an advance copy of legislation passed by Congress last week. The legislation settles the liability question that was halting progress on the program.

What it amounts to, said Moritz, is "the U.S. government will assume liability for this particular vaccine, and everybody involved will be covered."

He added that this should increase the likelihood of physicians participating in the program.

Vaccine for Potter and Randall counties will be sent to the Amarillo Bi-City, Bi-County Health Office.

Health officer director Dr. G. Mason Kahn said tentative plans for Canyon are for an innoculation clinic to be set up either the last Sunday in September or the second Sunday in October.

Present plans are to give the shots somewhere on the West Texas State University campus, possibly in the building where the health resources office is located.

Kahn said his latest information is that there will be two vaccines.

A bivalent vaccine, containing both swine and A-Victoria virus will be given to those 65 and older. A monovalent vaccine, with only the swine virus, will be for those under 65.

Dr. Charles R. Nester, Canyon physician who is working with the Bi-City, Bi-County unit on the project, said plans are being finalized for administering the vaccine to Canyon residents and information will be given to the public as soon as it is available.

The local project is part of an unprecedented campaign to mass-innoculate Americans in hopes of avoiding a possible influenza epidemic in the United States.

Mosquitoes bite budget

Those pesky mosquitoes Canyon residents have been slapping recently are taking a bite of the city budget also.

Already, the budgeted $14,000 for mosquito control has been spent with at least six weeks left of warm weather, said city manager Glen Metcalf.

For the past several weeks, the city has been trying to spray twice a week. Metcalf said he was not sure how much had been spent this summer but that it was more than he had expected for the year.

"I think we're controlling the mosquitoes in the city area, but what happens is the areas around the creeks have perfect breeding conditions so they hatch out and come back into the city," Metcalf said.

Metcalf said the city was using a spray of 95 percent Malathion which is supposed to be excellent. He urged residents to buy a 50 percent Malathion solution and spray bushes, hedges, trees and any standing water.

"This would be very helpful, he said.

Metcalf said the city crews were trying to spray on Monday and Tuesday and then again on

Burkett lad still critical

Mike Burkett, a Canyon teenager injured in a one-car wreck Aug. 13, remains in critical condition at Northwest Texas Hospital.

He has been in intensive care since the accident.

Four other teen-agers hurt in the wreck have been released from area hospitals.

Burkett was a passenger in a car driven by Brian Pratt on VFW Road. According to state trooper Jim Humphrey, the car went through an intersection, crossed a ditch and hit a high-line pole.

Long day on tap for county

Commissioner's court, at its best a lengthy meeting, could set some endurance records Monday.

There are 24 items on the agenda, although some of the discussions are just new chapters in long stories.

Items to be rehashed include the ambulance contract, which Randall County has still not signed; funding for Kids, Inc.; and county insurance.

Other topics on the agenda are listed as discussion of purchasing agent, discussion of county insurance, discussion of letter to annex contractor, discussion of fire safety inspection, discussion of amendment of the budget, discussion of Hunsley Road improvements, and discussion of appointment of a member to the board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

In addition, county surveyor John Dorsey will present a plat for unit seven of Timbercreek and Keith Horton will meet with the court on bore hole septic tanks.

Commissioners are also scheduled to discuss the last meeting of the committee of officials of Canyon, Randall, Amarillo and Potter County (CRAP).

Joe Rice and Jack Jennings of the Canyon Fire Department will discuss with the court the purchase of radio equipment.

The meeting will be held at 1 p.m. in the commissioners' courtroom on the second floor of Randall County Courthouse.

Flags are ripped off

Almost a quarter of the Texas flags put up this summer by the Canyon Chamber of Commerce were stolen.

Roland Black, Chamber manager, said about 25 flags are missing.

"All the flags from the museum on down are gone and now they're working on the ones on the west end of Fourth," he said.

Earlier this summer, the Chamber posted a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the flag thieves. No one has claimed the reward and no arrests have been made.

"We'll have to alter our program someway next year because we don't have any replacements for them. We'll have to replace some along the highway that are ragged or dirty," he said.

Black said he planned to take the flags down from their light pole mountings this week.

Enrollment jumps as schools open

Enrollment is up considerably in the Canyon School System.

All schools show increased enrollment except Gene Howe from which 100 students were transferred to Rex Reeves in Canyon this year.

Enrollment at Rex Reeves was 988 on the first day of school and at Gene Howe 481 with 160 kindergarten students and 12 early childhood children at the administration building which once housed Neblett Memorial Hospital.

The total enrollment this year of Rex Reeves, Gene Howe, kindergarten and early childhood comes to 1641 as compared to 1583 in November of last year.

It is difficult to compare school by school enrollment since some 100 have been transferred from Gene Howe to Rex Reeves this year.

First Baptist Church reports an enrollment of 14 for its kindergarten classes.

Junior high school this year has 937 students as compared to 954 in November of 1975 and has 875 as compared to 800 last year.

Willie McAlpin, assistant Canyon school superintendent, said the peak enrollment has not been reached predicting a surge after labor day.

He said three students have transferred to Canyon from Amarillo School District while 13 have transferred from Canyon to Amarillo, these mostly to take advantage of special classes.

McAlpin noted that 32 have transferred from Bushland largely for high school. Some 28 students living on the edge of the district and in 3 miles of Happy have transferred to school in that community.

Vindicated Hanson won't come back

Dr. James Hanson has declined to return as director of Panhandle-Plains Museum after having been invited to do so by some members of the board.

Dr. Hanson resigned last Spring but the board did not act upon his letter of resignation.

Early this month a grand jury cleared Dr. Hanson and members of his staff after investigating alleged misappropriation of funds.

Tom Christian of Claude, a member of the board, said he and several others felt that the museum had a very able director in

So big

Carol Callahan is among the aides working with the three regular kindergarten classes which now fill the CISD Administration Building. About 160 are enrolled in kindergarten classes for the 1976-77 school year. Classes are being conducted for morning and afternoon students at the facility.

FROM THE CANYON RIM

by Troy Martin

The country is still wondering why President Ford picked Robert Dole of Kansas as his running mate.

My friend, Paul Allingham, publisher of The Atchinson, Kan., Globe and friend of Senator Dole, says Ronald Reagan may have had a hand in the choice.

Paul, who is a brother-in-law of Watters Fain of Canyon, covered the Republican convention for his newspaper. He said the nod for veep was almost as much of a surprise to Dole as it was to the rest of the nation.

He talked to the senator who said he knew he had been checked out for skeletons in his closet but he had not given any credence to his being selected.

Allingham says the senator has a national reputation with farm organizations. He serves on the Senate agriculture committee and of course, comes from an agricultural state.

Dole has a reputation as a brawling campaigner. Clean of any Watergate complicity in spite of his position with the Republican Party, Dole survived the Nixon massacre of 1974 and was reelected in spite of the Democrat big guns turned on him.

"I've found him to be absolutely honest," Allingham declared. "He does not double talk."

"He's a free enterprise guy and he's no fool. There's no big brother stuff for him. He understands government and governing."

Dole broke into tears when he met his home folks in Russell, Kan., after the national convention. Being reduced to tears hurt Ed Muskie's campaign four years ago but I think it might have the opposite effect on Dole's reputation as being a hatchet man.

No one can visualize a hatchet man bursting into tears for any reason. I know it was once said of Robert Kennedy that no one had ever seen him weep. Tears in the right place sometimes denote a man of compassion and where more do we need compassion than among those who rule over us.

Former Congressman Bob Price sent me a book called "The Case Against The Reckless Congress" which I received Saturday.

Coming in an impressive envelope marked Special Delivery, the book was accepted by members of my staff.

Bob, who is trying to unseat Jack Hightower who defeated him two years ago, showed no recklessness at all in the venture.

He spent fifty cents on postage and stuck me with $1.29 in postage due. He even enclosed a two-sentence letter to up the cost an additional 13 cents.

Maybe it would be cheaper for me if Bob gets back into congress and has his franking privileges returned. I love to hear from you Robert but I don't know whether I can afford it.

Oh, well! It may be worth a buck twenty-nine. One of the sentences did say: "Warm personal regards" and when you're in the newspaper business and a columnist to boot "Warm personal regards" from ANYONE are to be regarded highly.

Althen gets national honor, $2,000 grant

Pat Althen learned Thursday that she will receive the General Creighton W. Abrams Scholarship Award this fall.

The scholarship is privately funded and is awarded annually to two third-year Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets nationwide.

Award recipients receive $1,000 a year for two years.

Althen earned a B.S. in psychology this summer and will earn a master's degree while on the scholarship.

Tradition endangered

Thieves have taken nearly a quarter of the flags that decorate the city during "TEXAS" season.

It is difficult to imagine why anyone would go to the risk or take the trouble to get a flag down from about 16 feet up a light pole.

And it is sad that the flags put there for the enjoyment of visitors and residents alike were not safe from theft.

It damages the spirit of a community some if the things it values are not secure. And once doors and hearts are bolted, it is difficult to unlock either. —

Our World

Christians lax in their teaching

By ANN BROWN

According to psychologist Robert Ornstein, "Our culture is the best educated, wealthiest, most 'emotionally aware' in history. It is also one of the most spiritually illiterate."

He says the West's grab for the religions of the East are the result of that spiritual illiteracy.

There is within the heart of every man a God-shaped vacuum that he ever strives to fill. If one fails to find truth to fill his empty spot, then he attempts to fill it with what he does find.

When the democratic presidential aspirant, Jimmy Carter, said he was a "born-again" Christian, many professing Christians began asking what he meant.

That question was asked 2000 years ago. Nicodemus thought it impossible when Jesus said, "You must be born again" (John 3:7).

If being born again is essential to enter heaven, what other kind of children does God have except the born-again ones?

Professing Christians being ignorant of the term, born again, tells three things about them: They have not read their Bibles; they have not heard the gospel preached; and they probably never experienced the new birth.

Nicodemus was an intellectual and a religious leader, yet he knew nothing about the new birth that Jesus said was essential to entrance to heaven.

Men often give specific explanations of the new birth: "It comes with baptism, through obeying the commandments, etc."

Jesus Himself did not explain it very well. He said it was like the wind. No one has ever seen the wind. We don't know where it comes from or where it goes — but no one doubts its existence.

We feel the wind against our own bodies, and we see its effect all around us. So it is with everyone born of the Spirit.

The last command Jesus gave His followers was to go and teach others all the things He had taught them (Matt. 28:18-20).

It's quite obvious Christians have not taught much about the new birth.

The many cults proliferating in California, and the Eastern religions, which have so many followers in America, say nothing about being born again.

Wherever illiteracy exists there is usually a hunger for knowledge — whether spiritual or academic.

Who ever saw an educated person who regretted getting an education? And who ever saw a born-again Christian who regretted committing himself to Jesus Christ?

There is no such thing as personal fulfillment without personal sacrifice. And there can be no spiritual fulfillment without spiritual commitment.

Many, many church members turn their backs on the church — may even become its enemy. But when one is born into God's family, he can't become unborn, and Jesus said he shall never die (John 11:26), so he belongs to God always.

The next question is, "What keeps one from being born into God's family, and then being as wicked and rebellious as he chooses?"

What prevents a child born into any home from doing as he pleases?

God said to His children, "As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten . . ." (Rev. 3:19).

Any child must learn to live in harmony with his parents if he expects to be happy.

America was a haven that attracted God's children so they could be free to worship Him. But God has no grandchildren. Everyone must be born into God's family for himself; each new-born Christian inherits salvation from Jesus Christ — not his parents.

If America is spiritually illiterate, it is because Christians have not carried out Christ's command to teach all things.

Seminar planned for bard's plays

A Wednesday evening seminar on the ten historical plays of Shakespeare will be taught this fall for the first time at West Texas State University.

"This course will benefit not only students interested in English, but those studying English history," says Dr. Charmazel Dudt, course instructor.

Dr. Dudt will examine the literary merits of the works as well as place them in perspective with the events and the morals of Elizabethan England.

"History can be misinterpreted or misused in order to teach basic lessons of the time," Dr. Dudt says.

Through the plays she will also "show the passage from the medieval to the modern age and the change in the idea of the king."

Shakespeare, English 55761-1, will be taught Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9:55 p.m. in Room 423 of the WTSU University Complex South.

Registration for this and other West Texas State courses will be August 27 and 28 in the WTSU Activities Center.

For more information, telephone the WTSU registrar at 656-3331.

Old time ranchers depended on brand

By ANN LANDER

In the days before barbed wire flung a protective arm around Randall County grassland, brands were the only claim a cattleman could lay to his property.

Brands were registered like trademarks and woe to the cowpoke caught by a clandestine campfire altering one of these sacred marks of the Old West.

When the cattle industry began in the Texas Panhandle, methods for raising a herd were much simplified compared to the methods of today.

A rancher bought some cattle, turned them loose on the open range and left them to their own devices for a few years.

These first herds were made up of tough Mexican Longhorns and were perfectly able to care for themselves in the wilderness.

In the spring the rancher would then gather his herd, brand the new calves and separate those ready for market.

But, cattle are notorious for their ability to stray from ranch to ranch and county to county.

In cold weather a herd would drift with the winds for miles.

During a roundup, a rancher would always find many animals with brands other than his burned on their flanks.

These animals were returned to the proper owners, and the rancher would pick up cattle marked with his symbol that had strayed into other herds.

The roundup was and still is, the busiest time on any ranch.

Roundup usually took place twice a year — in the early spring and the late fall.

The first project to every roundup was to load the wagons with provisions, bed rolls and other equipment.

The men, usually numbering from between 18 and 30, were then divided into four groups. Each group went in a different direction bringing the cattle they found back to the wagon.

Each man was given a job according to his agility. Some men caught the calves, some branded, some roped and some cooked.

When the cattle were brought in the new calves were branded with the same markings worn by the mother.

Production line methods were used, with someone bringing the calf in, someone else roping it, and another branding it. Their technique was quick and sure.

Brands meant many different things. Some of the ranchers worked out a system so that the brand told the age of the animal.

The LX Ranch in the Texas Panhandle used this system. The first year the brand was put on the shoulder, the second on the side, the third on the hip. The brand was always on the left side. In this way the age of the animal could be told at a glance.

On other ranches the brand was rotated a quarter of a turn each year, so that they could tell the age of the animal.

Branding was an important business and no one took it lightly.

Cowboys even carried branding irons on their saddles when they were riding the range. This way if they found any strays that were missed during the regular roundup, they could brand them then and there.

However, this was a practice used only when the calves were still with their mothers or when representatives of a nearby ranch were present.

This way cowboys could not be accused of branding cattle with the wrong mark, or was at least an effort in that direction.

Penalties for cattle rustling were severe and usually if anyone was caught altering a brand they were shot first and questions were posed later.

Brands were registered by counties. This meant that two separate ranches could register the same brand in two different counties.

However, cattlemen with ranches that covered a large area registered their marks in all the surrounding counties.

The favorite practice of rustlers was to alter the brand already on the animal. This was done with a crooked iron.

The rustler would use the pointed instrument like a pencil, using the brand that was already there, adding the needed lines that would make a new symbol to fit the one he had registered.

Ranchers in Randall County and the Panhandle had little trouble with rustlers until the settlers moved in.

The problem became so intense afterwards that in the middle 1800's the cattlemen banded together and organized the Panhandle Cattle Raisers Association.

Any settler or rancher could join whether they owned any cattle or not and be guaranteed that the attorneys of the Association would take care of his legal battles.

No big deal

Now that long hair for boys has been officially okayed, some hairy students will probably settle down to classes in Canyon.

This expectation comes despite the fact that the Canyon School Board held out on hair long enough for long locks to go out of style in most of the country.

Hair styles for both males and females have retreated from the extremely long to a medium length cut with considerable fullness.

It was too bad that hair lengths became a rallying point between the generations.

Teen-aged fads usually come and go with only a moderate amount of head-shaking done by the older folks.

Likely, when the first animal-skin-clad cave boy started knotting his animal hide over both shoulders instead of just one like the rest of the cave men, someone moaned that the young folks were going to the dogs.

Our army, always a stickler for regulations, used to have a hard time preventing its younger officers to grow a proper set of whiskers and mutton chops instead of going around with their naked face exposed.

So fads come and go and as long as everyone accepts them as fads no harm is done. The trouble comes when folks try to attach a meaning to things that should have no meaning other than custom.

Like tying the concept of discipline to the length of one's hair. Learning discipline is necessary for young folks, but it has nothing to do with hair styles.

A short-haired kid can be just rotten as one with long hair. More important; however, is that once you've tied discipline to hair, eventually you have to untie them.

That leaves the powers that be back-pedaling to assure everyone that although the hair rules have changed the need to accept rules remains and will be enforced.

We get into trouble on a national level too by linking concepts.

Historians generally attribute part of the post-World War I cynicism to the moral fervor with which Woodrow Wilson invested the need to fight.

More recently, after declaring for a decade that South Vietnam was worth our wealth and blood, when the decision to get out was finally made, our leaders had to try to convince the country that our goals had been met there and that South Vietnam was no longer of primary importance.

The decision to leave the fight could have been made sooner had the battle not been tied earlier to a moral commitment.

And, back in Canyon, hair lengths can be expected to no longer have any connection with morals or behavior. This is the way it should be.

Texas Triangles

Triangles for the past week have been awarded to patrons of the outdoor musical drama "TEXAS" as mementoes to take back to several foreign lands. The triangles are awarded each evening to the audience member travelling the farthest to see the show.

On Aug. 13 with 1,662 persons in the audience, Podasoowan Sopit of Bankok, Thailand, received the triangle.

Receiving the Aug. 14 triangle was Alex Asaraenyi of Nigeria, with an audience count that evening of 1,912.

Records showing the recipient of the triangle for Aug. 16 have been misplaced; however, the attendance for that performance was recorded at 1,914.

On Aug. 17 as 2,008 persons were viewing the show, M. S. Kang and K. S. Mathi Leena and Majet of India received the triangle.

The Aug. 18 triangle went to Young He Mok of Korea, with an audience count of 1,743.

A matching attendance for Aug. 19 was 1,743 with Bruce Wallis and Gloria James of Australia receiving the triangle.

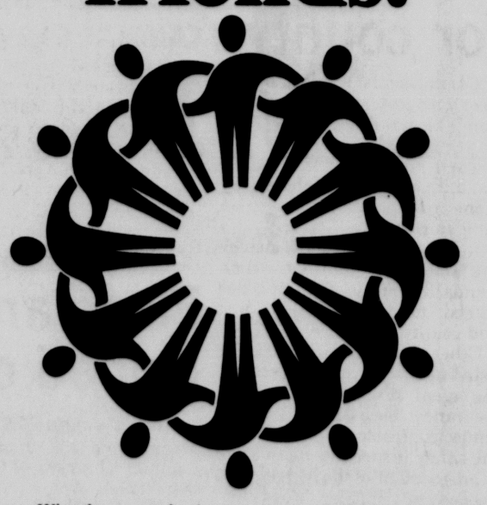
Join our circle of friends.



Why do we emphasize "circle of friends" while other banks emphasize their "full circle of service?" Because we're the bank that pays special attention to customers: all of them, in a great big way, no matter what service or services they use. The bank that thinks of customers as a circle of friends. And the nicest thing about our circle is that it's always open. There's always room for one more. How about you?

Taught in English

Class to explore France

Anyone interested in modern-day France will find West Texas State University has a treat lined up for fall.

The treat is in the form of a course to be offered for the first time entitled "twentieth century France."

Monica Heiman, who teaches French at WT, will offer the course at 7 p.m. on Tuesdays.

No prerequisites are required of those interested in signing up, and the lectures will be given in English.

Heiman said that because of the large number of works to be covered in the course, the cost to use any one text or set of books would be a problem.

So assigned reading for the class will include handouts and books, magazines and newspapers on reserve at the WT library.

She stressed that she is attempting to keep expenses for the students to a minimum.

The course will include non-literary, even commercial, topics. It can include just about any aspect of French culture during the twentieth century.

Heiman commented that people intending to travel in France or do business there might profit from the course.

She said, "It's an exciting prospect, honestly, and I keep thinking of more ideas."

The class will deal with art and she hopes to make arrangements with the art department to borrow slides or films on cubism and surrealism.

Heiman commented, "We're far enough away to look at surrealism now and begin to assess it; we're certainly far enough away from cubism."

She hopes to show trends as well as present culture and summed up the course as "an attempt to show the essence of the twentieth century."

Heiman said, "My missionary urge is to improve communication between the two countries (the U.S. and Canada)."

The class is to be offered as Arts and Sciences 29901. It is open to all ages and to those in any major field and will be for three semester hours credit.

Another course she said students from other fields might find interesting is French 403, also to be offered this fall in English.

The course is to cover twentieth century French literature.

Registration for the two classes is set for Sept. 9 from 6 to 9 p.m. in UCS Room 115. Professor of record for the administration class will be Dr. Paul Zintgraff and for supervision, Dr. Robert Krajewski. Other Tech staff will be involved.

Students who have completed a master's degree and administration certification are eligible to enroll in the in-service administrative doctoral program. Those who have completed the first 15 hours of supervision may complete their certification in supervision by attending classes offered by Tech at WTSU.

Several students from the Amarillo-Canyon area attended this program last spring and continued their work at Tech during the summer. Some have been fully admitted to the doctoral program in administration and will continue their studies on the WTSU campus this fall.

The doctoral program was organized at Texas Tech to enable school administrators to pursue a doctorate while retaining their position. Those wishing to obtain more information on completing an educational supervision certificate or the doctorate in administration are invited to attend the first session on Sept. 9.

Coffee set for women

The West Texas State University Women's Advisor Office is sponsoring a coffee Aug. 26 for returning women students who want both information from and interaction with other mature women in college.

The informal coffee will begin at 10 a.m. in Room 104 of the WTSU Education Building.

"This meeting will give women the opportunity to discuss the problems of returning to college," said Dr. Enid Bates, WTSU women's advisor. "They will be able to get feedback from women who have done it."

Included in the special services available this fall to returning women students are study skills courses and aptitude and interest tests.

The Brown Bag seminars will also return this year with topics such as "What Am I Good For and How Can I Find Out" on Sept. 15, "Pot Luck and Politics" on Oct. 20 and "Who Wants Me and How Much Am I Worth" on Nov. 17.

A conference on opportunities for women is planned for area high school counselors on Sept. 22.

For more information, please telephone Dr. Enid Bates, WTSU Women's Advisor, at 656-2172.

FELLOW COURTHOUSE WORKERS will honor retiring farm agent John Brazzil with a party Monday from 3-5 p.m. in the county courtroom.

A community-wide party will be held for him Aug. 28 at 7 p.m. in Conner Park.

Two important men from the legislature are shown here with a former colleague who has gone on to bigger things. From left are Senator A. M. Aikin, state senate finance chairman; Cong. Jack Hightower, himself a former state senator; and Rep. Bill Heatley of Paducah. The legislators were here to discuss West Texas State University's upcoming budget request. They, along with Bill Presnal, chairman of the house appropriations committee, and area legislators were guests of Hermas Miller, WT financial vice president, at an Amarillo Club dinner Friday night.

TOPS hosts fun night

The local chapter of Take Off Pounds Sensibly (TOPS) recently hosted a fun night with 12 clubs from Amarillo and Hereford participating.

A "town crier" announced each club's entrance at the event and queens crowned for each club were the members who had lost the most weight during the preceding quarter.

Regular meetings lately have included presentations by three speakers.

Morris Westberry gave a talk on flower arrangement. Mrs. Jerry Jacobs spoke at a recent meeting on her experience in teaching brain-damaged children.

Another speaker for the group was Terry Widowski, a member of KOPS (Keep Off Pounds Sensibly) who has maintained her "goal weight" for five years.

TOPS members are eligible for KOPS when they have reached their goal weight and maintained it for at least six weeks.

Other news from the group is that member Charlyn Carr has reached her goal weight.

TOPS members in Canyon meet at First Presbyterian Church on Fridays. Weigh-in starts at 9 a.m. and the meeting normally lasts until about 11.

Anyone interested in joining can contact Charlotte Lehnick at 655-9388.

Gay Lynn Auld is program chairman for the fall. She is presently planning guest speakers and book reviews for the season.

The group plans to visit club 612 in Amarillo and hold a family night in September.

Young tennis players check their court time at the Canyon Open Tennis Tournament here Friday and Saturday. Shown are Amarillo youngsters Greg Gilmour, Kelly Brown, Taylor Fyfe and John Golight.

Clubs getting their fall programs in gear

A large number of local women will work toward improvement of their own self concepts through participation in any number of the city's clubs again this fall.

With the approach of September each year, clubwomen seem to get a twinge for seeing friends and having a few hours discussion for enrichment of their own lives, improvement of their community and bettering their understanding of various subjects.

Other than enrolling in Community Education Courses of their own choosing, many women add to their lives by joining city clubs which offer a variety of interest fulfillments to members. Anyone interested in joining one of the city clubs is encouraged to speak with the various presidents to obtain further stipulations regarding membership.

Federated clubwork is available for city women through three general and two junior federated clubs which are under the guidance of a council which annually plans a Federated Club Dinner and other special projects.

The federated clubs of the city are a part of the Top of Texas District which encompasses the upper Texas Panhandle Counties. The clubs are also affiliated with the state and national organizations of federated clubwomen and other than monthly programs sponsor numerous worthwhile projects to benefit the community.

At the general federation level are the Woman's Book Club, Sue Hite Club and the University Study Club of Canyon. The junior federated clubs of the city include the Canyon Study Club and Heritage Woman's Club.

Federated clubwork is also available at the high school level through the Les Amies Juniorette Club which was originated here under the joint sponsorship of the Heritage Woman's Club and Canyon Study Club. Both clubs provide adult sponsors for the group.

Aside from federated club activities, many Canyon women have become involved in the promotion of the community through the women's division of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce and numerous businessmen are active leaders in the chamber.

Meeting on a monthly basis for women are the Tierra Blanca chapter of the National Secretaries Association which includes business women from the Canyon-Hereford area. Also meeting monthly in the city is the Canyon branch of the American Association of University Women with membership open to all women holding the baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university.

An association of wives of administrators, faculty members and other staff members of West Texas State University is also active as a social and informational outlet for those women. The group is aptly dubbed Faculty Wives, Etc.

Newcomers to the community are also welcomed by another group known as the Canyon Dames which meets on a monthly basis for social sessions and workshops.

Other club groups for special interests of residents include the Canyon Fine Arts Club which meets monthly and the Canyon Garden Club which involves those interested in local gardening information.

Community involvement in volunteer work is also available through the Canyon branch of the "Friends of the Library" which is designed to benefit the library services and sponsors a Little Readers program for preschoolers.

Other volunteer service organizations include the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum Auxiliary which provides assistance for the museum staff and the Palo Duro Hospital Auxiliary which maintains a gift shop at the local hospital and does other volunteer services as needed by the staff.

Canyon Meals on Wheels, another volunteer organization, provides the elderly and incapacitated of the community with hot lunches at a nominal fee and makes use of volunteer drivers and office help throughout the year.

Also available in the community are several home demonstration clubs which devote their interests to improvement of the homemaker's skills through a variety of programs during the year. The HD clubs are under the general guidance of the Randall County Home Demonstration Council and work directly with the County Extension Agent in home economics, Becky Hall.

Social life for community women is also available through various sorority groups such as Beta Sigma Phi which has four local chapters, and the various alumnae sorority groups which assist and work with active on-campus sorority chapters.

Men of the community also have civic enrichment groups including the local organizations of the Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis Clubs. The men's civic clubs meet for noon luncheons weekly at the Canyon Community Center, with the exception of an Evening Lions group which convenes at the Village Inn on Monday nights.

Also meeting weekly is an organization for those residents reaching retirement age aptly termed the Canyon Senior Citizens Organization. The group, whose members are 55 plus years, meets on Thursday evenings weekly throughout the year for a potluck supper and fellowship at the Senior Citizens Building.

Coal fuel now used

Brac Biggers, division manager for SPS in Amarillo, has announced that Southwestern Public Service Company is now burning coal at its new Harrington Station northeast of Amarillo.

This is the first time in the modern history of the company that coal has been used to fuel the boilers that produce steam at Southwestern's power plants. The low-sulphur coal is brought in from Wyoming in 110 car unit trains on a twice-a-week schedule and will be used at the rate of 3500 tons per day when the generating unit is operating at capacity.

Construction of the second 350,000 generating unit is underway at Harrington Station with completion scheduled for 1978. Plans call for additional coal-fired units to be in service in 1980, 1982, and 1984.

Local artist donates work

Local artisit Carl Smith has donated an original western painting to the Palo Duro Hospital Auxiliary for the purpose of raising funds.

The painting, presently on exhibit at First National Bank of Canyon, will be drawn for in December and tickets are being sold by the Hospital Auxiliary.

Funds raised will go toward the purchase price of a heart monitor to be presented to Palo Duro Hospital by the Auxiliary, according to Mrs. O.W. 'Bud' Parker, auxiliary president.

The painting which features an old time setting includes a pioneer family in the foreground with the background featuring a windmill and rustic building. The painting was framed by Bill Sternenberg of Sternenberg Lumber Company and tickets for the drawing are being provided courtesy of Haley Printing Company in Canyon.

Crash course to tell students how to get job

A six-week course on "How To Get A Job" will be offered this fall by the West Texas State University Placement Office.

The continuing education class will meet Tuesday evenings at 6:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 21, and students may sign up for the course either at the Placement Office or during regular WTSU registration.

"In a day when we hear so much about jobs, employment and careers, it seems very vital that young people are counseled early as to what their academic preparations might afford them," said Gene Parker, WTSU placement director. "It appears there is a definite need for strong counseling to help the student who might need to take electives in other areas besides his major for some kinds of job preparation if his major fails in gaining employment."

The course will cover such items as academic preparation for employment, and "how-to's" on writing resumes, researching employers, conducting interviews and dressing for interviews.

Guest speakers from the U.S. Civil Service, Texas Merit System, Texas Education Agency and other major employers will also appear.

For more information, contact the WTSU Placement Office at telephone 656-2021.

ROTC grants awarded

Two students from West Texas State University have each been awarded a two-year ROTC scholarship, according to LTC Charles L. Laakso, professor of Military Science at WTSU.

Patrick Cannon, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Cannon of Canyon, and Rosendo Ramos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Vega of Tulia, were given the scholarships based upon their performance this summer at the ROTC Basic Camp at Fort Knox, Ky.

West Texas State was one of only two schools that had more than one student win a scholarship at the camp. The scholarship will pay for the students' tuition, books and fees in addition to $100 a month during the school year.

Tasteful treats from the freezer

Summertime is the time for cranking the freezer—as folks across the nation revel in the art of making homemade ice cream using nutritious dairy products and often times adding their own touch of fresh fruits in season.

Whether your freezer is the type that is cranked by a family member or turned by Southwestern Public Service Company's Ready Kilowatt perhaps you will enjoy the following selection of ice cream recipes as furnished by the American Dairy Association.

Following is a basic recipe for homemade Vanilla Ice Cream which can be varied as listed in the substitution changes following:

VANILLA ICE CREAM

3 eggs
1¾ cups sugar
3 cups milk
3 cups whipping cream
2 Tbsp. vanilla
¼ tsp. salt

Beat the eggs until foamy. Gradually add sugar and beat until thickened. Add milk, cream, vanilla and salt and mix together thoroughly. Chill in refrigerator. Churn-freeze. Yield: About 3 quarts.

* * * * *

Variations on Vanilla Ice Cream include the following:

BANANA-MARSHMALLOW: Reduce sugar to 1½ cups, heat the milk, add 10-ounce bag of marshmallows and stir constantly until melted. Allow to cool. Puree 2 cups of ripe bananas and add 1 Tbsp. lemon juice to avoid discoloration. Add 1 cup chopped maraschino cherries (optional). Chill thoroughly and churn-freeze.

BLACK WALNUT: Add 2 cups finely chopped black walnuts to basic Vanilla Ice Cream recipe before churn-freezing.

Now that long hair okay, kids here don't really care

Canyon junior high and high school students seem pleased with the new dress code for Canyon schools but doubt the changes will have much effect in the long run.

Few boys are wearing their hair much longer than last year, even though the new code allows it.

And most seem to think that once the novelty of being able to wear longer hair to school wears off, fewer students will care about the issue.

Students new to Canyon this year were unaware there had been any disputes over the dress code.

Becky Wines, a ninth grader, said the new code here was similar to the code in the school she attended before.

Comments from the students mostly concerned the change allowing boys to wear their hair longer.

More of the senior high than the junior high girls liked the boys' hair longer. Angie Landram summed up the opinion of many in junior high, "When it gets down to their shoulders, it's too long."

Eighth grader Timma Thomas agreed that very long hair "doesn't look as neat."

At the high school, Elaine Noel commented, "I don't like some of the long hair. It's okay if it's neatly styled but not if it looks stringy."

Sophomore Janet Coffelt thinks the boys can look cuter with longer hair and added the present policy is "not as discriminatory."

Some boys at Canyon Junior High School were among the few to comment on the part of the dress code dealing with girls.

Eighth grade student Kent Newcomb was disappointed that "the girls can't wear halter tops, and we can't wear cutoffs."

John Runyan agreed and said, "The boys want to wear tank tops."

One group of students at the high school commented the changes made the boys happier (especially changes in the hair code).

They said at least now the boys aren't dodging the teachers and trying to cheat on the code.

A number of high school students had opinions about the hair code.

Junior Dwayne Mauldin thinks the hair code is okay but expressed the hope that most boys won't let their hair grow too long and will keep it clean.

Terry Bye, also a junior, agreed with him and added that he approves of the code as it applies to girls' clothing.

Senior Royal Brantley said, "I think it's great. I think only a handful of people are wearing their hair longer."

Joel McKinney, a junior, said he is letting his sideburns grow longer now and noted that, "Some of the boys were anticipating a change in the code, so they had let their hair grow out this summer."

Senior Steve Powers said, "I like it this way. Everything's more relaxed. At least you don't spend time in class talking about hair."

He added that more is accomplished that way in class.

Eighth grader Jody Detten at the junior high thinks most kids really don't care much about the code one way or the other.

Al Foster, a senior at Canyon High, expressed the view of many of the students, "I don't think it'll change much."

Guy Osborn and John Runyan, both eighth graders at Canyon Junior High School, returned this fall with short haircuts, even though the dress code permits longer hair.

TEXAS entertains 95,000 this season

A grand total of 865,000 persons have seen the musical drama "TEXAS" as the show closed its eleventh season with the performance last night.

The 140 cast members of the "TEXAS" company have played to 95,000 spectators during the bicentennial summer season just ending and the next production of "TEXAS" won't be until June 1977.

Cast members greeted 30,000 people who travelled 500 miles to see the show and danced and entertained more than 35,000 persons who live more than 100 but less than 500 miles from the Pioneer Amphitheatre, in which the show has been staged for the past eleven seasons. Some 30,000 persons who live within a hundred miles of the Palo Duro Canyon saw the show this season.

The cast members and hospitality crew were making ready late Saturday to load their belongings following the final performance and head for home. The crew was to clean the dressing rooms, shop and concessions building, turn in props and costumes and wind up the summer season with a final dinner together.

Try-outs and plans for next season are already being scheduled with the opening performance set for June 15, 1977.

Pond helping form alcohol abuse program

Randall County Judge Woody Pond is helping put together an alcohol abuse treatment program for the 25 counties of the Panhandle.

The county judges from the Panhandle met in July to survey the need in the area for a comprehensive treatment program. Judge Pond was named chairman of a temporary committee.

"We did a study of the needs of the 25 counties on drug dependence and we decided there was a need for some type of organization," Judge Pond said. "It seemed the logical choice that the county judges would be in charge.

"So all the judges were visited and all agreed on the need," he said.

The judges took on the obligation to form a permanent committee to oversee the management, treatment, and rehabilitation of alcoholism in the area.

An action committee consisting of Pond, Raeford Ratliff, chairman; Sam Morgan, vice-chairman; Warren Jenkins, Branch Archer, Don Cain, Lester Campbell, and W. S. Frizzell, Jr., was appointed.

These judges are responsible for the organizational structure and activities of a central service being developed for alcohol rehabilitation.

They met Thursday night and postponed consideration of a charter and bylaws until they can visit a Minnesota treatment agency they plan to use as a model.

Representatives from here will go to the Hazelton Foundation clinic soon, Pond said.

"Personally, I think it's a good pattern," Pond said. "I think the Hazelton Foundation is doing a terrific job in the field of alcohol dependence treatment."

The date for the trip is undecided but Pond said he will not be able to go.

Disney films shown today

The summer series of free films being shown at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon will be showing five short films today, August 22.

Show time is 3 p.m. in the second floor lecture room of the museum. The program is free to all persons.

Included on the afternoon agenda will be the films: "The Great Plains", "Nature's Strangest Creatures", "Wetback Hound", "Wild Dog Family" and "Wild Cat Family."

BAPTISM

1. IN THE NAME OF THE FATHER, SON & HOLY GHOST
—OR—
2. IN THE NAME OF JESUS CHRIST

Which of These Were Practiced By the Apostles in the Early Church?

BELOW ARE TWO COLUMNS FOR LISTING THE SCRIPTURES WHERE THE APOSTLES EITHER TAUGHT OR PRACTICED WATER BAPTISM.

IN JESUS NAME	FATHER, SON AND HOLY GHOST
JEWS — "Repent and be baptized everyone of you in the name of Jesus Christ." Acts 2:38
SAMARITANS — They were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Acts 8:16
GENTILES — He commanded them to be baptized in the name of Lord Jesus. Acts 10:48 (RV)
PETER TAUGHT — There is none other name given whereby we must be saved. Acts 4:12
PAUL TAUGHT — Whatever you do, do it all in the name of the Lord Jesus. Col. 3:17

Matthew 28:19 was a command by Jesus to baptize in a NAME. The Apostles did not repeat the words of the command, but they did obey it as seen in the scriptures above. Since Father, Son, and Holy Ghost are titles of the manifestations of the Almighty Spirit and His body, the Apostles understood His SAVING NAME to be Jesus. Can any dare say that the Apostles disobeyed the Lord, or failed to baptize properly?

Registrar's nightmare: no computer at signup

The fear that follows Dr. Don Cates around these days is that the computer will break down in the middle of WTSU registration.

"Our system is so computer dependent we couldn't function without it," he said. Cates is registrar at West Texas State University.

Registration Aug. 27-28 requires a complex logistical system.

While enrollment is unlikely to be as high, the registration staff must gear to handle about 10,000 people, Cates said.

In mid-August, 8,006 registration packets were mailed to current, past, and potential students. There are 680 freshmen already pre-registered and Cates figures on 300-500 students who will apply for enrollment for the first time on registration day.

"If everyone showed up, we'd about have that money," he said.

Just setting up the facilities is complicated. This week, Cates made arrangements to move into the Activities Center all-purpose room, 115 tables and 350 chairs for faculty during registration. Additional tables and chairs are needed for the deans and checkpoints.

All the admission files will be moved to the AC ballroom to set up a temporary admissions office. There students seeking tentative enrollment or change to regular enrollment status can be processed.

An ID station to make student ID cards is also set up there.

Cates said during one registration both ID machines broke down and they had to hastily get machines that would letter by hand.

The registrar's office is set up during registration as a temporary business office to collect student fees.

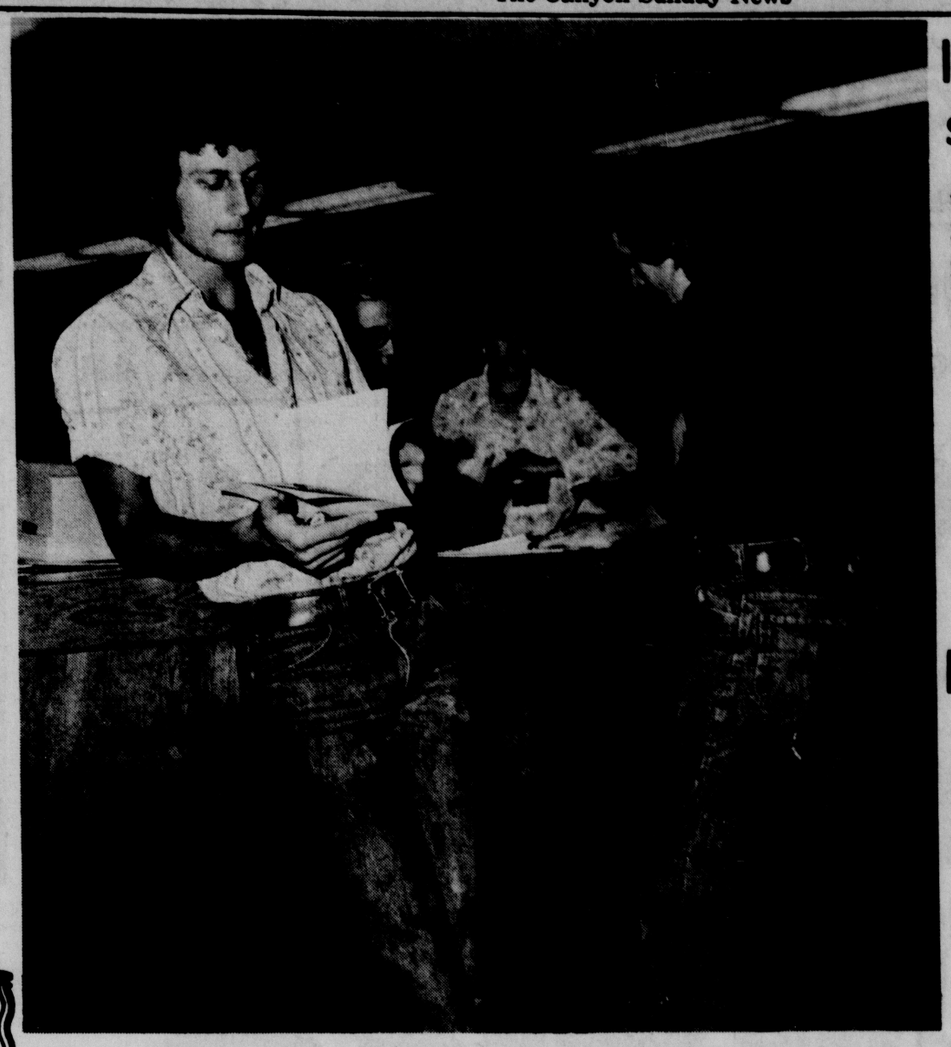
Cates estimated that about 75 extra employees are hired for registration.

Metric figuring

"The Metric System" will be explained for Canyon Senior Citizens and any other community resident desiring to learn about the new system on Tuesday.

A public program discussion on the metric system will be held Tuesday, Aug. 24, at 1:30 p.m. in the Canyon Senior Citizens Building at 1719 5th Avenue.

The program will be presented by county extension agent, Becky Hall.



Ready to register

This placid scene will change Friday and Saturday when registration gets underway at WTSU. The registrar's office has mailed more than 8,000 registration packets to potential students. Friday, Steve Ott and Bob Galloway of Amarillo took advantage of the lull to register. Katharyn Chitwood does the paperwork.

Ice cream supper planned

An ice cream supper honoring the Randall County Extension Agent, John Brazzil, on his retirement will be held Saturday evening, August 28, in Conner Park.

Brazzil has been the county extension agent for Randall County since 1948 and will be retiring to private interests on August 31. His replacement will be Bob Robinson, who has been serving with the Potter County Extension Service offices.

Hosting the retirement ice cream supper will be Forrest Gruner, R.B. Gist, Jr., Lee Moore, Don Dolle, Mr. and Mrs. Jones Hales, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Turpin and Mrs. Allen Winters.

A special gift fund to honor Brazzil has been established at First National Bnk and with Consumer's Fuel Co-Op according to the home demonstration county extension agent, Becky Hall, and Paul Sammons, assistant county extension agent. All friends of Brazzil may contribute toward the retirement gift which is to be presented at the ice cream supper on Saturday.

Post Office. . .

to be about 22nd Street between Fourth and Fifth Avenues. Postal authorities said they did not recall the exact location but speculated that it is around 22nd Street.

That area is properly zoned for a post office, but a number of houses there must be torn down if that site is chosen.

Moreland said he had no idea how many persons will come to the hearing Wednesday night.

Jim Palmer, leader of the Fifth Avenue group, said he had discussed with district officials in Oklahoma City the best nights to schedule a hearing. Wednesday was ruled out because of community church services, Palmer said. He said he understood the hearing would be planned for a Thursday.

Thursday and Friday. The creek areas are included in the spraying.

With complaints increasing from mosquito victims and costs of control rising, Metcalf said, "I'm praying for an early fall."

Goodnight marked area

BY JACK WALKER

"Coronado may have found this country," a grizzled old timer was once heard to remark. "But it took 'em three hundred years to find a man big enough to do something with it."

That old timer was, of course, referring to Charlie Goodnight, the man who, probably more than any other, left his indelible mark on the Panhandle of Texas.

Goodnight has been described in many ways. His friends called him honest, hard-working, straight-forward, loyal, cantankerous and, at times, downright honery.

His enemies, of which there are many, called him by perhaps more colorful but much less complimentary names. Historians have called him a man of destiny — a man of vision.

But by whatever adjectives applied to him, Charles Goodnight was agreed by all to be a fearless, strong-willed and driving man.

He was also a man of fierce and lasting loyalties.

His friends were, he felt, the cream of the human crop. He was also very proud of his enemies for he numbered among them the horse thieves, cattle thieves, killers and other parasitic riffraff of the frontier.

Goodnight was a lover of all things natural and he spent a great part of his long life in the out-of-doors.

He saw his first buffalo in 1845 as his family traveled by wagon-train across the northern part of the Republic of Texas. He saw his last buffalo eighty four years later on the game preserve that he built for the creatures on his ranch in the Panhandle of Texas.

But, though he loved the buffalo, Charles Goodnight was first, last and always a cowman.

His family settled in Milam County, Texas and there Charles learned the habits of animals and the quirks of nature that were to stand him in good stead throughout his long and colorful career as a pioneer. He had an insatiable curiosity and he remembered everything he learned. He also became a friend of the Indian while he was growing to young manhood in Milam County.

In that early time poverty was a way of life in Texas, and as a very young man, Charles Goodnight and a stepbrother, Wes Sheek, decided that they would go to California to seek their fortune. With one wagon, a bull team and three horses they pointed westward. A few nights later they came to the flooded San Saba River.

Hanson. . .

Dr. Hanson and wanted him to remain at his post.

"We just suggested that he take a little vacation and think about it," Christian reported Friday. "He called in about the middle of the month and said he would not be back."

Christian said the board has not yet made a move to find a new director.

Flu. . .

N.J. were the first people in the U.S. discovered to have the swine flu virus.

The virus may have infected up to several hundred Fort Dix recruits. However, federal Center for Disease Control researchers have not turned up any further outbreaks in the U.S.

The researchers discovered 8-percent of those over 50 have antibodies to swine flu in their blood, but said even the older people with antibodies in their systems are probably not immune.

Surplus. . .

for his salary or the boost in auditor's salary for Tirey.

Both Wilson and Tirey are new county employees. Wilson's job is newly created and Tirey was hired at a substantial increase from the former auditor. In addition, the salary for Tirey's assistant needed to be included in the budget, said Wilson.

Other expenses they are asking to include in an amended budget are the payments to the ambulance service, the fee for the outside auditor, payments for the computer bookkeeping service the county uses, and funding for Kid's, Inc.

Also, Wilson said, the budget needs to reflect the reduction of Justice of the Peace Bill Wilson's salary by $40 a month, because he resigned recently as building maintenance supervisor.

Wilson said the end of year balance may be greater than he is estimating.

"We were liberal on the amount of expenditures and conservative on the income. That surplus is a conservative figure," he said.

The figures will be detailed for the commissioners Monday and an amended budget is expected to be passed.

News errs in story

Financial information published in the Aug. 19 Canyon News in a story of nursing care for the elderly is incorrect medical social worker Jim Couzzourt said.

Financial requirements for Medicaid are based on several things, such as basic income and various resources that are classed as liquid assets. The $438 figure used in the story is incorrect, he said.

The Canyon News regrets the error in its story and any inconvenience this may have caused to readers or the State Department of Public Welfare.
